MEDIA STATEMENT (UPDATED)

The Cabinet of Antigua and Barbuda, [during its] meeting today at 10:00 am, decided to close the V.C. Bird International Airport to all incoming international commercial air traffic, commencing midnight Thursday, 26 March 2020, thereby ending the possibility of flights from the customary North American and European tourism source markets, for two (2) weeks in the first instance. LIAT, cargo craft, private jets, and other small private aircraft will be allowed to fly into and out of V.C. Bird International Airport, including flights to and from Anguilla, Barbuda, Montserrat by the customary small carriers.

This decision expands the announced ban on citizens from several identified countries.

Commercial air carriers that choose to fly empty aircraft to Antigua after Thursday, will be allowed to enter in order to collect citizens of their respective countries for return to their originating cities. The citizens of those several countries who would have arrived on British Airways, American Airlines and Air Canada, among others, may wish to take advantage of the facility.

While there have been no confirmed cases of community spread of the COVID-19 (Coronavirus), several of the Government's ministries have been closely monitoring all developments, here and abroad. Antigua and Barbuda's borders have remained open to air and sea traffic in order to ensure that workers across the several sectors remain employed.

It has also now become evident to the Cabinet, after examining the extant conditions and the disregard displayed by attendees at funerals, that little or no attention is being paid to the announced policy of limited social gatherings of twenty-five (25) persons. That policy is being violated, despite the severity of the threat of community spread of the coronavirus.

The announced policy of last Sunday, which limits social gatherings to twenty-five (25) persons, has been disregarded and violated especially by returning nationals who feel a strong urge to re-connect with grieving family and friends. Funerals have served as a means of social expression of love and tenderness. However, the conditions of the spread of COVID-19 have compelled a change in national behavior.

The Cabinet repeats its determination to safeguard the health of the people of Antigua and Barbuda.
